Municipality unveils Minden SPA plan

Ever since Noah built his ark, people have been thinking up ways of dealing with floods. A letter to The Times some years ago suggested that each Minden resident should keep a rubber dingy handy - say, moored to the side of the house - for the day the Gull River creeps over its banks and into our bedrooms. And last Thursday the Municipal Council unveiled its plan for flood preparation.

At a public meeting in the municipal chambers, town planner Bob Lehman explained Council's scheme to set up two Special Policy Areas in the Village of Minden. In Ontario it is illegal for a municipality to permit development on land that might be flooded, but if it can be proved that freezing of development in a certain area would seriously harm the economy of the municipality, the Government will allow limited development in what it calls Special Policy Areas. Council is now in the process of applying to establish such areas.

It would be smarter, said Lehman, for the Municipality to establish Special Policy Areas than to try to prevent a flood by building dikes or dredging the river, which would be far too costly and would likely cause worse flooding downstream. By allowing limited development close to the river, he explained, Minden would clear the way for natural, healthy growth.

Besides explaining the plan, the purpose of the meeting was also to give the public an opportunity to express opinions on the proposed development areas which could worsen the effect of a flood by raising the water level. Described by Lehman as 'the bath tub principle', the effect of more buildings in the flood plain would be the same as that of stones thrown into a tub of water: the water level would rise. According to a study completed by the municipality however, Minden flood water levels would rise at most 12 millimetres, or half an inch, on other buildings in the flood plain if the special policy areas were fully developed.

Members of the public who attended the meeting offered no serious objections to the proposal to set up the two special policy areas. Most questions dealt with problems of property owners when the Gull River is at its normal level, such as motor boat wake and natural erosion.

In order to prepare plans for the scheme, the Municipality had to carry out two studies. The first identifies land near the Gull River which is subject to flooding, and was paid for by the Federal Government, the Ministry of Natural Resources, and the Municipality. The second study predicts the effect on flood water levels of development in the Special Policy Areas and was done by the Municipality.

The likelihood of a storm capable of causing such conditions is slight; to get their results, analysts compared statistics of the worst storm in the area on record (it happened in 1962) with statisticts of the 'hundred year storm' or the kind of storm that might strike once in a century. The results from both studies are of the lesser of these two storms.

The studies also distinguished between the flood way, or areas normally dry that would be in the main current of a flood, and ponding areas, or places that would be flooded without being in the path of the main current. The Special Policy Areas - one behind Anson Street in the field south of the IGA, and the other off Prince Street in the field between the OPP office and the river - would be on land prone to ponding during a flood.

One suggestion made during the meeting was that instead of preparing for a flood, the Municipality should be trying to prevent one by dredging the river. Mr. Lehman explained that the cost of digging out the river bed - it would have to be many feet to be effective - would be prohibitive.

He also pointed out that most ways of protecting Minden from flood damage, including dredging and building dikes, would indirectly cause worse flooding down stream. If this happened, said Lehman, Minden could be involved in some expensive court cases. He said the Special Policy Areas are the best way to prepare for a flood.

Perhaps the most interesting suggestion was put forward by Counsellor Verne Graham: "If we could just

Minden Kinsmen receive convention honours

The Kinsmen service club of Minden was honoured three different ways at the recent Kin Convention held in the Highlands.

They topped the list of District Eight's 68 clubs for the greatest percentage increase in money raised over last year.

The Minden club, led by President Warren Payne, was also honoured for the best public relations and as the all-round best club of the year.

The last two awards were directly related to the club's contribution to cyctic fibrosis treatment. In the past year, the twenty-one active members have donated a building for a treatment camp in Orillia, built by their own hands.

According to Mr. Payne, the Minden Kinsmen will raise from $15,000 to $20,000 this year.

Cystic fibrosis is a lung ailment which attacks children many of whom eventually suffocate on the mucus produced by it.

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation of Canada has been the major beneficiary of the Kinsmen since 1963. It was announced at the awards ceremony on Saturday that $500,000 in all has been raised by the Kinsmen in the past year to fight the disease.

The convention this year was held in Dysart Arena and was hosted by the county's three Kinsmen Clubs. It attracted over four hundred Kinsmen and their wives, known as Kinettes, from eastern and central Ontario.

The convention was nicknamed 'Highland Fling' and lasted from Thursday until Saturday.

Members of the Kinsmen Club of Minden received a number of awards at the District Eight convention last weekend in Haliburton. One of the most prestigious awards was the Club of the Year banner presented during the luncheon Saturday. Club president Warren Payne, left, accepts the honour from an officer of Kinsmen District Eight.

Ride for Sight raises $154,000.

While the number of participants was below expectations, organizers of the Ride for Sight were still pleased with the turnout this past weekend in Minden. The crowd of motorcyclists from throughout Ontario was estimated at over 1500, approximately the number who attended last year's ride.

What pleased the organizers more than anything, however, was the donations received from those participating. The riders arriving in Minden brought with them $154,300 for the fight against retinitis pigmentosa, an eye disease. Officials of the charity expect that figure to rise to $175,000 or more as pledges from those who did not participate arrive at the RP offices in Toronto. Last year, the ride raised $135,000.

Ride Chairman, Art Rea of Toronto, had expected more than 2000 to take part in this year's event. He based his estimate on the interest shown by motorcyclists throughout the province and the friendly welcome received by the participants last year in Minden. However, when Saturday dawned in Toronto, a light drizzle and later heavy showers fell on the starting line. The largest group of riders formed up in Toronto for a grand parade to the meeting site.

Rea explained that many riders are reluctant to take their machines out when the weather is inclement. As well, since the majority of the participants planned to camp next to the arena, the rainy conditions would have added to the reluctance of others to take part.

As it turned out, once the riders travelled north of Beaverton, they found the rain had stopped. While overcast conditions continued throughout the day, there was no rain until later Saturday evening.

Minden merchants John and Linda Pentney of the local Home Hardware store were among those to take part in the ride. Carrying pledges from community merchants and residents, they contributed $747 to the charity. Additional donations in their names are expected in the next few weeks.

While in Minden the riders had an opportunity to view a number of commercial exhibits provided by local merchants and national concerns related to the motorcycle industry. Several community groups provided food and beverage service for the participants. A dance Saturday evening was the highlight of the weekend's activities.

Members of the International Christian Bikers Association joined members of the Minden Gospel Church for a social evening Saturday, returning the next morning for the Sunday service.

A small contingent of riders also took an abbreviated tour of the Highlands Sunday morning. Heading north on Highway 35, they turned west on Highway 118 to West Guilford and Carnarvon, returning to Minden via Highway 121.

Across the country, rides in various provinces raised $385,000 for the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation. Executive Director of the association, Nora Frood, says she expects that total to rise to $500,000 by the time all pledges have been turned in.

Organizers of this year's ride expressed their appreciation for the warm welcome received in Minden. The ride Chairman, Art Rea, commented that once again the members of the Minden community had provided, "an enthusiastic welcome which was appreciated by all those taking part." He suggested that the organizers would be willing to consider the community as the destination for next year's ride as well. Planning for that ride will begin later this summer.

Acid rain report

There were three precipitation events reported at the Ontario Ministry of the Environment testing station in Dorset during the past week. The following report on those incidents was provided by Environment Canada.

- on June 1, a 3mm rainfall was recorded with a pH of 4.6. The path of the rain was traced to northwestern Quebec and central Ontario.
- on June 4, 7 mm of rain fell with a pH of 4. The rainfall originated over Michigan and passed over central Ontario before reaching here.
- on June 7, a 10 mm rainfall was recorded. The pH was 4. The path of the rain was traced from Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered serious. The lower the number, the more acidic the precipitation.

LEAD lending function approved

It's been a year of hard work for Andy Campbell and the steering committee for the Haliburton County LEAD planning project, but the Federal government has finally approved their application for a grant to set up an investment and counselling company. The request for funding was submitted to the government's LEAD program (Local Employment Assistance DEvelopment) in March of 1985.

The cheque from the government for $344,510, will arrive in July, and by that time the LEAD Planning Project will have changed its name to the Haliburton County Development Corporation. Project manager Andy Campbell explains that the purpose of the corporation will be to increase employment in the County by providing local business with counselling and loans of up to $25,000.

As part of a five year plan outlined by the government, the corporation will receive $220,000 a year for the next three years (the July cheque will include the money for this year) and $350,000 for the last two years. This will leave the corporation at the end of five years with about $1,360,000 in lending funds. According to the conditions of the grant, said Campbell, money cannot be lent at less than the prime interest rate. He estimated the corporation's interest rates would probably range between the prime rate and three percent above it.

The objective of the Development Corporation will be to lower unemployment in the county by a yearly average of about one percent. "Though we have close to full employment in the summer," Campbell explained, "many of the jobs are seasonal and the unemployment level in winters can be as high as 20 per cent. This is the problem we're trying to face."

Under the LEAD program funding must go to a business that will stimulate the local economy and increase employment. The idea to start a LEAD business in the County was first put forward by the Chamber of Commerce. After getting a small operating fund from the Government, they hired Campbell to prepare three business proposals and to organize the application for the grant. To do this, Campbell had to find a steering committee which would act as a board of directors when the funding came through and the business was formed. By sending letters to each of the reeves in the County and holding public meetings he managed to find 14 people. Ken Wilson was then elected as the chairman.

Although they made three business proposals to the LEAD program, only the idea for the lending corporation was accepted. The Government turned down proposals to build a village mall in Minden and an industrial mall in Dysart.

Board considers smoking ban

Dysart board of education trustee, Lynn Craigmyle is not disheartened by the defeat of a motion which would place severe restrictions on smoking within schools and the board office. In fact, the Haliburton real estate salesman is confident that once the motion is reintroduced at the June meeting of the board, it will receive a more positive hearing.

The far reaching motion was seconded by veteran Dysart trustee Len Salvatori. The motion covered three different areas, a reason Craigmyle speculates a majority could not be found for the precedent setting policy.

The resolution called for the board offices to become a "smoke free" area as of get Parks Canada to agree to a name change for their dams - from the Trent Canal water level control to flood control - for just three months of the year, then we'd be a long way toward solving the problem.

It was explained at the meeting however, that this would be a very difficult thing to do because it would involve communication between Federal and Provincial governments, and such communication "rarely occurs."

Council will hold another public meeting on its plan to set up Special Policy Areas on the 25th of this month. The Provincial Government will be looking at this meeting to determine the public opinion on the matter. If the Government sees general opinion in favour of the scheme, Minden may well see the establishment of the Special Policy Areas.

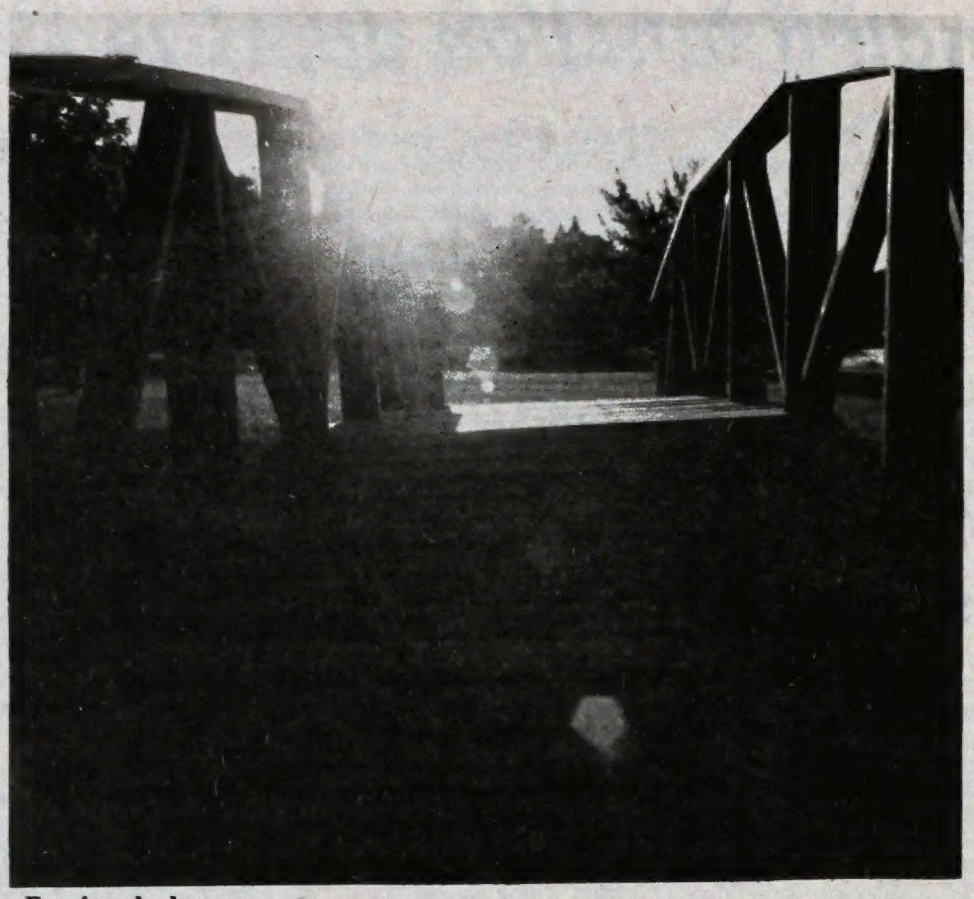
Finally, a plan

It has taken a long time, but the municipality and the provincial government appear to have moved closer to an understanding on the designation of flood prone areas in the village and those which may receive consideration under the special policy area designation. The plan outlining how these problems will be tackled, was unveiled for the first time last week. While this first meeting was important for those wishing to grasp the significance of the report, a more formal meeting is planned for the near future at which time the plan will receive a thorough examination.

The report has been over two years in preparation, something which has frustrated residents, especially those resident along the Gull River. These individuals have been living under a cloud of uncertainty regarding the status of their property, and in particular, its market value. The issuing of the report will help to clarify this situation.

Just as important, however, will be the municipality's application to have two areas within the village designated as Special Policy Areas. If approval is received from the province, it will permit future development in an orderly manner which will ensure the continued protection of existing property while providing an important degree of stability for those who have invested in the future of the village.

The riverside residents of the community have lived with this problem long enough. They must be relieved to finally see a policy emerge. Hopefully the plan can, once and for all, lay to rest their concerns over the status of their property.



Evening shadows.

A bountiful spring

- by John Eakins, MPP -

Spring is upon us in the Haliburton Highlands and the past few weeks have certainly been good to the area.

On May 31, I had the pleasure of joining with my municipal colleagues in opening the Pioneer Farmstead at the Haliburton Highlands Museum. The three new buildings at the Museum are a most welcome addition and will help to preserve some of the history of Haliburton County. Later that evening, I broke bread with over 30 travel agents from the Buffalo/Rochester area who visited our province during the last few days of May. These visitors were taking part in a Central Ontario Familiarization tour sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, the Central Ontario Travel Association and my Ministry of Tourism and Recreation. Part of their tour included visiting several resorts in Haliburton and I was not surprised to hear them praise the hospitality of the people in Haliburton. Included in this tour was Mr. Durban Morrow, the Canadian Consul General in Buffalo who enjoyed the warm welcome extended to the touring guests.

Hopefully, when these travel agents return to their businesses, they will sing the praises of Haliburton. And when our Buffalo friends visit us in Haliburton, they will probably see construction due to a $1.5 million grant I announced with my colleage, the Honourable Jim Bradley, Minister of the Environment. The grant, funded by our two ministries, will stimulate sewage construction in the Township of Dysart et al.

This is a significant announcement for many reasons. Firstly, the extension of sewer services will permit further resort expansion along Highway 121 and in the area of Kashagawigamog Lake. This construction will generate approximately 237 jobs, annual income of about $6.7 million and it is anticipated that tax revenues of $2.4 million and other development worth $2 million will accrue to the communities in the area.

Secondly the agreement reached by my Ministry and my colleague Jim Bradley, illustrates what can happen when proper channels are utilized.

During the past few years, interested parties in the Dysart area tried to persuade the provincial government to provide funds for this worthy project. When I became Minister of Tourism and Recreation, I set the wheels in motion to acquire assistance for this project, even though the BILD program, which had already turned down a previous application by the municipality, was no longer in existence. I am pleased to say that with the co-operation of my colleagues in Cabinet, the project will now proceed.

Ontario assistance

-by Bill Scott, MP -

Since September 1984, the Progressive Conservative government has initiated new programs and improved existing ones which directly benefit residents of the Province of Ontario. Following is an overview of just some of these measures which have assisted the Ontario economy in its current upswing.

Employment

The Canadian Jobs Strategy will provide increased opportunity for job training and job creation in Ontario. The federal government and Ontario reached a three-year agreement under which the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission will increase the real level of training during the next three years. Since September '84, over 305,000 jobs have been created in the province and the unemployment rate fell from 9.5% to 6.8%. Total unemployment fell by over 114,000.

Environment

The federal government has undertaken the most comprehensive environmental protection plan ever in the fight against acid rain. The fight against acid rain will preserve Ontario's lakes and forests and ensure the future of the province's

In spring and early summer, in Ontario alone, 500 million to 1 billion young birds, a year's generation, leave their nests. Many of them, particularly young starlings, grackles, robins and blue jays (all of which breed commonly in settled areas) are found by people (especially children) who assume that the birds are in trouble and need to be 'rescued'.

The inclination to help a fellow creature is a good one and certainly to be encouraged in impressionable children. The problem is that efforts by humans to help young birds usually have the opposite effect and ultimately instill the wrong message about the appropriate relationship between people and wild animals.

Most people assume that young birds are raised in the nest until they are able to fend for themselves and fly away, and therefore that any flightless, obviously immature bird on the ground must be in trouble. This is not the case.

Young songbirds grow at an astonishingly rapid rate between hatching and fledging (developing their flight feathers) at 2 - 3 weeks. For most birds the naked and blind hatchlings are oblivious to their surroundings, responding only to a parent's call or movements. As they grow, they become more aware of their environment and by day 10 a fear response is evoked by sudden movements around the nest, despite the fact that if undisturbed, they would stay there another 3 to 4 days. This premature departure means that the young leave before they are fully capable of flight.

Although more vulnerable to predation (and well meaning rescurers), these young birds are not abandoned. The parents will respond to the food call of the fledgling and will continue to do so for the next 10 to 14 days. Meanwhile, the young will learn to find their own food, develop their powers of flight, and gradually become more capable in dealing with the world.

In other kinds of birds, early leaving of the nest and separation from the adult are important survival techniques. Killdeer, for example, nest on open branches and fields where young would be promptly spotted on the nest. They hatch at an advanced, downy stage, and leave the nest within hours, to run among vegetation, "freezing" if startled. The adult deliberately maintains its distance, so as not to draw attention to the young, returning periodically to provide food and training.

In short, most orphans are not orphans at all; but

Marion Sedgewick returns to school on the other side of the world

by John Greenwood

Marion Sedgewick is ambivalent about witch doctors.

Since going to work in Papua, New Guinea as the principal of a nursing school run by the Anglican Church in the remote costal village of Dagua four years ago, the Gelert native has had to deal with local sorcerers on more than one occasion. "One of the biggest problems we face in our village is that the people choose to go to a witch doctor when they become ill and only go to a hospital as a last resort. A friend of mine, the wife of the local school inspector, recently went to a native healer because she has a pain in her side. When the fellow claimed to have magically removed a rock from her body, she thought she was cured. But what actually happened was that her inflamed appendix - the real cause of the pain - had burst, relieving for a short time, the discomfort. As it was, she very nearly died but if she had come to us in the first place, there never would have been such a problem."

Sitting at home in her living room, a cup of coffee in one hand and a book in her lap, Marion doesn't look at all like the sort of person likely to run a school for native youths in a country where head-hunting and cannibalism are not quite things of the past. But, as she explains, her reasons for going off to the other side of the world, you get a glimpse of the woman's formidable reserves of energy.

"I'd been nursing in Haliburton and teaching all over Canada for twenty years, but I felt I needed another challenge and that it was time for a change." Having been involved with the United Church for many years by then, Marion thought she'd like to try mission work in the Third World. She applied for a job in Africa ("because the Evangelical movement is strong there") and was turned down, but she was offered a position with the Anglicans in New Guinea. Without a second thought, she took it.

Few cities or roads

Marion holds up a map of her new country to show where she's been. New Guinea, a large island off the northern coast of Australia, is divided in half. Part of it, Papua, New Guinea, is autonomous. The other half belongs to neighbouring Indonesia. The black dots signifying cities are few on both halves of the island, and roads are fewer still, confined mostly to the mountains of the interior where coffee is a cash crop (also a region that is still unsafe for travellers during period of tribal strife.)

"Westerners," says Marion, "would call it primitive because in most places there is no electricity and women wear grass skirts even in the capital city."

The largest part of the population live in small isolated villages, accessible only by foot. Their houses are made of grass and small tree trunks and are built on stilts as protection from the floods of the rainy season. Marion estimates there are probably less than 200 people in the whole of Papua, New Guinea who are completely out of touch with Western civilization - which is pretty good for a country that saw its first European colony less than a hundred years ago and that has parts which only emerged from the stone age in the later 1950's.

For many of the 15 to 20 students who enrol at Marion's training hospital in Dagua, the four hours of electricity they get every night is a luxury. They don't mind the fact that any light after 10 p.m. must come from a kerosene lamp and even Marion has learned to treasure her kerosene refrigerator.

Many of them are from the countryside where money is scarce even by New Guinea standards and for these students the job of raking together the tuition is a family affair, to which uncles, cousins, and even distant relatives will contribute for the honour and extra income, of having a professional in the family. "Everyone is part of a clan or a village and they each work toward the good of the group." In that sense, it's a very socialist country.

Marion Sedgewick is giving the witchdoctors in New Guinea a run for their money. Marion teaches modern nursing methods to the native population in Dagua at a hospital sponsored by the Anglican Church.

Barefoot doctors

"At my school in Dagua," she says, "we try to mix classes with practical experience. So for every month of academics, each students gets a month of field work on a patrol." Which means that at least twice during a term, the class pack their bags with supplies and enough medical equipment to perform basic operations, like setting broken bones and putting in stitches and walk out into the countryside. "They're very much like the barefoot doctors of China because, even with the simple tools they carry, they can see up to about 95 percent of the needs of the people. Patients with illnesses or injuries too serious to treat in this way, such as appendicitis, are flown out by helicopter.

Marion regrets the fact she's only been on a few of the foot patrols since she arrived in Dagua, but she knowns the routine. "When you arrive in place after a

Counting calories

Testing, testing...one...two...three.

Does this thing still work? Can you hear me out there? Wave if you can hear me. Ah good ... thank you.

Hello. For those of you who don't bother to read the credit lines, this is NOT Gary Kenney. This is Jack, an inhabitant of that strange and wonderful world known to many far and wide as "Jack's World". Remember me, I used to be here from time to time with some light hearted pearls of wisdom and an occasional left jab. If you remember, one of my last offerings in this place was countered by a sharp right hook from a property-owner on an unnamed lake north of here.

Some may have speculated that the stinging blow spelled the end to my career inside the ring ... a TKO of sorts. Others might not have noticed my absence at all ... such is life. Well neither is the case, as I stand before you a living example that indeed old writers don't die they just run out of ink.

During the past few months I've pretty well left this space to Mr. Kenney and had been content with the more formal presentations required on page four. However, as you noticed, last week Gary dropped one of his thinly veiled, darkly cloaked, camouflaged hints that he was hoping to take the summer off. After a number of phone calls to confirm what I thought I had read, it turned out that what I had read was indeed what I had read.

As you readers well know, one cannot always be too sure from whence Mr. Kenney is coming and to whence he goeth. (We had considered running simultaneous translations on the opposing page, or offering a degree course in Kenneyisms, however we left our notes in the Queen's Parking lot, where, we believe they were purloined, lost or mysteriously disappeared.) So, now that Gary has announced his summer hiatus, I will attempt to step into the breach, but not the breeches, left by that man.

But enough of this frivolous banter. It is time to get down to the serious stuff for which Jack's World is so well known. That's right, it's brass tacks time ... time to play hardball.

So tell me, how is your diet coming along. Just about everyone I know is on one or about to start one. It would appear that slim is in and fat is not, (well they all can't rhyme.)

One of the greatest pleasures enjoyed by anyone attempting to lose weight, is the counting of calories. It is a thankless job, searching through endless charts to determine if three prunes and an eight ounce glass of denatured ginger ale (this being a family publication I am restrained from exploring the shower of options offered by the term 'denatured', even though it pains me greatly, as no doubt it does the ginger ale), equals a sice of Black Forest cake with or without ice cream. P.S. It doesn't ... you need fifty more tonnes of wilted plums to even come close. The calorie counter is a true believer in the impossible, a dreamer of sweet and unfilled dreams which inevitably turn to nightmares.

Is there hope, you ask? Would I have led you down this long and tortuous path had I not come armed with a suitable solution.

Indeed I have one at hand. For those who count the calories consumed in a day, there is hope yet. It is not that my scheme can get you more food, but that a formula I have discovered brings an entire new approach to the burning off of those nasty villains.

Joggers can tell you to the nth degree how many calories are consumed by their bodies when they run 5.893 kilometres in twelve minutes, 15.72 seconds. Weight lifters know to the micro fraction of an ounce how much weight has been oozed into the ozone by their dumbell antics. Aerobicers can tell you where all the calories have disappeared after fifteen minutes of jumping up and down in front of Jane Fonda.

But, does anyone know how many calories are consumed by jumping to conclusions. It sounds silly, I know, but in fact people who jump to conclusions, and we all do from time to time, actually consume calories and hence have the potential for mammoth weight loss. According to an authoritative study released in the prestigious journal "Ontario Meeting Sites", summer 1985 edition, right beside the article headlined 'You Have Turtle Races? So Sell Turtle Races!', those who regularly jump to conclusions stand to burn off 100 calories per jump. Not bad, considering conclusions are easily jumped to.

The procrastinators who populate our readership will someday be ecstatic to hear that dragging your heels is good for the loss of 100 calories. Beating around the bush is rated at 75 calories and passing the buck is a 50 cal melt down.

Forgetful? Having trouble recalling your own name? Lose weight and remember things at the same time. Jogging your memory is good for 125 calories.

jack's world

by editor & publisher Jack Brezina

Interestingly, one need not give up the consumption of food to experience a calorie loss. Indeed, according to the information contained in the publication quoted previously, the very act of eating can prove to be beneficial. For example, eating crow somehow results in a 225 calorie loss. Swallowing your pride, meanwhile, is good for 50 calories.

Some other interesting calorie beaters that you can pin up with pride on your refrigerator for quick and easy reference, just like you've done with all the other little notes you've ignored so studiously, include: grasping at straws ... good for 75 calories; turning the other cheek ... a 75 calorie effort; beating your own drum is rated at 100 cal.; while throwing your weight around tops the charts this week with a grand total of 300 calories.

Now, I could go on and on, but that would be pushing my luck (150 calories), so best just to offer a tip o' my hat (25 calories) and wave a fond farewell (115 calories) and get out of here before I bite off more than I can chew (250 calories).

Nurse receives a hearty village welcome

long walk, the first thing that happens is that someone is sent up a tree to get a coconut. It's the custom in most villages to welcome travellers with a drink of green coconut milk, which is considered a great delicacy. Then you're shown to a stream where you can bathe and clean off the dirt of your journey. Finally, cleaned and fed, you set up your equipment in the shade of a tree or between the stilts of a house, and by that time, all the people in need of attention and mothers with new children will be lined up in front of your table."

If it's a long way to the next village, the medical workers are put up for the night in a guest hut, (Marion is now used to sleeping on a board) and the next morning, they prepare themselves for another round of walking and healing the sick.

Marion explains these details with the assurance of a seasoned missionary. But she admits there was a time when everything about New Guinea was dreadfully strange to her. "When I first arrived, it took me six months just to get used to the heat and I used to go to bed at six o'clock every evening. And, I couldn't get over the amount of exotic and delicious fruits people used to eat at every meal, like pomegranates and kiwis and guavas."

Once she's got over the heat and food, there was the culture to deal with. In a land where one's hind legs are the primary mode of transportation and where most of the population is part of a tribe, some more warlike than others, this is a considerable hurdle. And things get incomparably more difficult when you add the fact that in Papua New Guinea, there are over 700 languages spoken and more than than 1000 dialects. "Many of the students speak ten different languages and think nothing of it, but I had a terrible time just trying to learn one." She gave up the effort after realizing that she would have to learn at least 20 languages before the effort paid off. Now Marion relies on translators, a practice which is acceptable in the country and much more practical than trying to master a dialect.

Overcoming distrust

Marion leans back on the sofa and stretches her legs. In a few days she'll be back at her desk in Dagua. "The biggest problem we face at the church hospital is the distrust of many of the older natives. They think we're in their country to make a buck which isn't true at all. Many of the early missionaries came well equipped with material goods to make life easier for them and to use as gifts for the natives. Of course the people just saw these missionaries as rich foreigners, and we're still trying to get rid of that image."

The church is now going about things more carefully. Workers and missionaries are allowed few possessions and are encouraged to live as much like the people as possible. Modern technology is also kept to a minimum so as not to intimidate natives who in some cases have never seen a car. Even hospitals the church builds are simple and low, and the beds close to the floor because people in New Guinea are used to sleeping that way.

In the meantime though, the witch doctor is still the first choice when a villager gets sick, and even Marion's students bear scars from their cures.

"Some people would call it just a lot of work in a hot country, and there really isn't any glamour once you've been doing it for a while." But that clearly is not the way Marion looks at her job. She loves it. The natives of New Guinea aren't just foreign tribes - they're her people.

Of course, there is a distinction here: though they're her people, there is a limit, as one old man told her, "to how close it's possible for a while person to get to being an New Guinean." Perhaps, but it's likely Marion will test that limit.

from the chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

Earlier this spring the Chamber received a formal request from Haliburton County to assume sponsorship of the Manpower Outreach Centre. For the past eight or nine years, our Chamber has been the sole sponsor for the Outreach Centre. There is a popular misconception that it is either a mini Unemployment Office or a Federal Government Employment Centre. It is, however, a formal contract between the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Employment and Immigration Commission to provide an Outreach Employment Centre for the Highlands.

The Chamber of Commerce is responsible for the hiring and training of the staff there, regular supervision of staff and activities and most importantly it is totally liable for its day to day activities.

The current manager Mr. Dennis Casey, has done an excellent job co-ordinating the county's employers with the resources available in our area. The county, however, has offered to assume the responsibility for being the Manpower Outreach sponsor. This move will relieve the chamber board, manager and staff of the responsibility and liability that we as a chamber have been carrying for the last several years.

This acquisition will occur over the next several months. It will not, however, interrupt or disrupt the continuing good service provided by Dennis Casey and his staff to the community. It will however, free our board and our manager's time to more effectively promote our county. The county, which is better equipped to deal with the administrative details of an Outreach Centre, will be able to provide the ongoing stability and resources necessary for the worthwhile sponsorship of this needed service.

June 1; that each school in the board's system designate one area within the building, out of the sight of students, as the only place where smoking is permitted; and that community groups using the school facilities be required to use that one area only for smoking when in the building.

The push for introducing the restrictions came from the Elementary/Secondary Joint Liason Committee. At the group's meeting in May, it was recommended that the board adopt the new policy. The committee includes members of the board and teachers from various schools in the system.

Commenting on the reaction of the board to the recommendation, Mr. Craigmyle said he felt the far-reaching nature of the motion was the main reason for its defeat. He said that while some members of the board favoured certain sections of the motion, there were enough trustees who objected to a portion of the resolution for the entire motion to be lost. He suggested that if the proposal were broken into three separate motions, with three separate votes, that at least some portion of the policy would be adopted.

He said he planned to re-introduce the policies at the June meeting of the board. Mr. Craigmyle said he was buoyed by the support shown by the liason committee and the teachers. He said it was important for the board to take a leadership role in this matter.

The vote on the motion, presented at the May meeting, was not recorded.

are cared for by 'invisible' parents. Some young will doubtless be eaten - by predators as well as cats. To humans 'detached' from biological realities, it will come as quite a shock to learn that as few as 30 per cent of any given year's 'crop' of young songbirds may survive to the next year. It is simply a fact of nature that populations of songbirds are maintained by balancing a high reproduction rate against a high mortality.

The young bird's chances of becoming a fully functional adult are at least as good if it is left to take its chances as if it is 'adopted' by people. Rearing requires feeding a specialized diet every 15 - 20 minutes throughout daylight, and even if successful doesn't equip birds to deal with other birds and the environment.

Fledglings, with fluffy features and short tails should be left where they are. If carried home by children, the bird should be returned to where it was found, and the facts should be explained. If the bird is in imminent danger of being run over by a car or similar accidental death, try to place it out of harm's way where its parents can readily locate (e.g. in a nearby bush.) Do not worry that handling by humans will discourage parental care; this is a myth.

Fallen nests with young should be returned to the original location is possible. The nest can be tied on with string, or placed in a crotch of branches in the same bush or tree.

Hatchlings, whether naked or bearing 'stubble' hold poorer prospects, having already had the trauma of being removed from the nest, dropped or handled, and deprived of food. But the kindest approach is still to return them whenever possible to the nest. When it's not, a simple and immediate decision should be taken, either to euthanize the bird, or to try that arduous task of raising what may survive to become a pet. The most inhuman of all possible approaches would be to slowly starve the bird to death.

The foregoing information is adapted from a fact sheet by the Massachusetts Audubon Society. A detailed pamphlet on orphaned/injured birds and their care is available free of charge from the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, 355 Lesmill Road, Don Mills, Ontario, M3B 2W8. A stamped self-addressed envelope would be appreciated.

Haliburton Kinsmen host annual Home Show

The commercial season will be in full bloom this Friday, with the opening of a three day trade show in Haliburton village.

As part of the eighth annual Home and Vacation Show, about 60 merchants, including many from outside the county, will be showing new merchandise under the roof of the Dysart Community Center.

The show is being staged by the Haliburton Kinsmen. Co-ordinator Walter Thomas is visibly proud of this event, telling This Month, "I've been told by impartial people that this show is far ahead of other such shows in central Ontario."

Kinsmen is one of Ontario's largest community service clubs. It caters chiefly to younger men aged 21 to 40.

Both stores and services will have displays at the show. Among the services are the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment (CHACE) and the Haliburton County Home Support Service.

According to Mr. Thomas, the large variety of merchants will range from jewellery to five marinas; automobiles to flowers; department stores to real estate firms.

There will be a number of free draws as well. The Kinsmen will hold another 50 - 50 draw, proceeds of which go to cystic fibrosis research. They'll also sell copies of their popular wild game cookbook.

The Home and Vacation Show is the major trade fair of the season for Haliburton County. Doors will open at noon on Friday, June 13 and close at 9:00 p.m. on Saturday, hours are 10 to 8 and, on Sunday, 10 to 3.

Hustlers win

The Minden Rockcliffe Hustlers raised their record to four wins and one loss as they defeated Janetville last Thursday by the score of 8-2.

Greg Newell was the big story as he pitched a seven hit game for his second win of the year. To help his own cause he slammed two home runs, one which was possibly the longest ball ever hit in the Minden park.

Dave Dollo pounded a triple to score three runs in the first inning. Kevin Smith rapped out a double then promptly showed the visitors some speed as he stole two bases to score. The Hustlers were backed with some fine defensive plays by Colin Newell and Rick Hartwick.

The locals have a heavy schedule this week as they host Lindsay Kent Tavern on Thursday night then travel to Lindsay on Sunday afternoon for a big double-header against York Tavern and the Pizza Hut.

Don't forget game time Thursday night is 8:00 p.m.

tourism industry. An agreement committing funds to Great Lakes research and cleanup was renewed by the federal and Ontario environment ministers. The six-year, $82.1 million Canada-Ontario Agreement Respecting Great Lakes Water Quality will provide more money for surveillance, upgraded sewage treatment and phosphorus control programs. The federal government and Ontario have extended the Canada-Ontario Flood Damage Reduction Program to 1995.

A five-year, $30 million Soil and Water Environmental Enhancement Program (SWEEP) to improve soil and water quality in southwestern Ontario was signed by the federal and provincial agriculture ministers. As well, Federal Environment Minister Tom McMillan and his American counterpart, Lee Thomas, reached agreement on the necessity of cleaning up the Niagara River.

Economic Development

A $226 million funding agreement for economic and regional development was signed by the federal government and Ontario. The five-year agreement, with each government contributing 50 percent, will provide funding for federal-provincial initiatives in forestry, tourism, mineral development and planning.

Agriculture

All federal sales and excise taxes on farmers' off-highway use of diesel fuel and gasoline have been removed and new guidelines will be issued shortly to simplify calculation of the rebate. The federal government has established a new long-term dairy policy to provide the industry with a stability it has not had since 1980, at a cost to the government of $1.5 billion. The $6.03 direct federal subsidy will continue for milk produced for domestic requirements. A new $700 million loan program has been established for Commodity-Based Mortgages to be made available to existing Farm Credit Corporation clients, subject to eligibility. A moratorium was placed on FCC foreclosure actions and FCC interest rates are at their lowest levels since 1979. Legislation to create farm debt review panels will be introduced and hopefully given speedy passage during the current Parliament. After many years of effort, Canada now has a national red meat stabilization plan. Ontario was the first province to sign agreements under the legislation. The federal government will provide up to $6.5 million for renovation of the Ontario Veterinarian College in Guelph.

Counsellor now in place to assist families in crisis

One outcome of the public meeting in Bracebridge last year on family violence, was the opening last week of an office of the Family Violence Safety Network in Haliburton. Run by Jude King, its purpose will be to provide counselling and help to wives and members of families who feel they are victims of violence in the home.

Jude has a deep concern with the issue of family violence, as well as pratical experience working with people. Before coming to Haliburton she was a counsellor for the Canadian Mental Health Association in Toronto, helping people who've been institutionalized, to readjust to living on their own.

The Family Violence office in Haliburton is one of three in the county and will be under the control of a head office in Peterborough. For the time being, explains Jude, her office is equipped to provide people with counselling and resources and it is hoped, they will soon be able to set up safe homes in the area, or houses where battered women can go to be away from their husbands and recuperate.

The office will also be working closely with the OPP who will report to Jude on situations they come across where family violence is likely to occur.

Jude King will be running the Haliburton office of the Family Violence Safety Network.

Deer licences available

The fall hunt may seem like a long way off, however, Ministry of Natural Resources personnel are reminding hunters that now is the time to apply for their deer licences.

According to Minden District Fish and Wildlife Supervisor, Art Fleming, "Anyone wanting an opportunity to hunt antlerless deer should apply now." To do so, a hunter must purchase a licence at the Ministry office or at various retail outlets in the county, complete the necessary application and submit it to the Ministry. The deadline for these applications is July 31, 1986.

Mr. Fleming noted that many hunters leave the application until after the deadline has passed, in which case they will have restricted hunting privileges, for antlered deer only.

For more information on deer hunting licences, contact the Minden office of the MNR or retailers where the licences are sold.

Artist explores floral imagery

by Chris Haslett

Thursday night saw the opening of a show of drawings and paintings that the artist describes as her first in "many, many years."

Paula Letki's works, entitled "Floral Images" will be on show at the Rails' End Gallery in Haliburton Village until June 21.

At first glance, it is clear that Mrs. Letki loves different forms of media far too much to use just one in a work of art. Many of her works cannot be termed either as drwings or paintings since they utilize watercolours, pencil, crayons and felt markers simultaneously.

She spoke clearly and eloquently about her works to the small audience. It is quite possible that she managed to leave most non-artists far behind in an ideological way. Whereas it is obvious that different flowers have different shapes and colours, it is difficult to imagine them, as she does, as having "different demands."

Regardless of where the truth lies, it is clear that Mrs. Letki has left the proverbial Cave and come to know flowers at a higher level.

All her works concentrate on one flower or a small with very little background. One of her few drawings that could be termed "environmental" is titled Stouffville Lawn. Done in green and purple, it is without a central subject and could be a patch off anyone's lawn.

Many have been drawn from photographs. However, she said that "the mental picture is the most important one." She explained the mental picture as being that which enables the artist to combine the details from many photos into one drawn image.

Flowers have not been a life-long interest for Mrs. Letki. Oddly, she dismissed the floral theme as a young woman as "too sentimental".

Although the subject matter and presentation of her works looks highly traditional, closer inspection will reveal the combination of media characteristic of the artist. She also changes the texture by using applicators such as tissue paper, a toothbrush and potato sections.

Mrs. Letki is not unknown as an artist, having run her own business, Letki Designs, for the past 14 years. She is, however, mainly respected for her jewellery design. She was trained as a sculptor and silversmith.

She painted a little at a time, never completely abandonning it. She views her struggle, in a somewhat tongue-in-cheek way, as that of fighting off her image as a jeweller. Moving to Haliburton was, for her, not quite an exile but a chance to impress herself on a fresh public as a drawer and painter.

"I've always played the jeweller," she told her audience on Thursday. "In Haliburton I want to develop my painting."

Born and educated in England, Mrs. Letki came to Toronto 15 years ago. Her credentials include winning the Ontario Arts Council Award for 1983 and tenure at Sheridan, Mohawk, St. Clair and George Brown Colleges.

Paula Letki draws from photographs, but stresses that the mental picture is the most important one.

Under the baton of HHSS music instructor Rick Vaughan, members of the school's stage band performed Thursday evening for an appreciative audience. The band, along with the Grade Nine band and Concert Band provided a two hour musical evening highlighting the progress made during the school year.

Lesley Tashlin 4th at All-Ontario

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School athlete Lesley Tashlin placed fourth in the junior girls 80 metre hurdles during the All-Ontario competition held this past week in Ottawa. Leslie's standing was the best of seven athletes who travelled to the competition from the school.

According to HHSS coach, Bob Colliver, all those representing the school turned in their personal best performances. They were, however, up against the best athletes from across the province.

Colliver said the fourth place finish was the best in the school's history.

Among those representing the school were Jody McKnight who competed in the midget girls javelin throw: John Vanderhorst in the junior boys shot put and 400 metres; Dan Johnson in the junior boys shot put; and the members of the open boys 1600 metre relay team. John Vanderhorst, Ted Paish, Craig Burk and Alex Little; in addition to Lesley Tashlin.

Hunter Obee moved to the head of the pack in the senior boys' 800 metre track race at Archie Stouffer Elementary School meet on Friday. This was one of many sporting events that took place at the school during the annual Track and Field day. The weather co-operated fully for the occasion.

Heart attack kills driver

Over the past week there were seven traffic accidents, three cases of impaired driving and seven liquor violations, police report.

Among the traffic accidents, there was one involving a motorcycle. Two people were taken to hospital in Lindsay after the motorcycle they were riding went off Highway 35 in a sudden rain storm. Damage to the bike is estimated at $4,000.

Another accident occurred when George Barrand, 47, suffered a heart attack while driving south on Highway 35. Mr. Barrand, from Whitby, died as a result and the car he was driving went off the road and hit a rock cut.

On Saturday morning Joseph Mikos, 42, who escaped from police in March of 1985, was recaptured. The bail hearing was held on Tuesday.

Boaters are reminded that traffic on our lakes is increasing and that extra safety precautions are necessary. The OPP will be patrolling waterways and testing boats for equipment requirements. They will also be testing alcohol levels in drivers in an effort to reduce the incidence of impaired driving.

Let's put to rest forever the controversy over Rogues Gallery. I asked for and have received a ruling from your president as to whose pictures can appear in this gallery. Since we cannot choose the times in which we are born, we are inviting all members who were in any active service to submit their pictures. When this gallery is filled, we'll have another one made.

To help clarify the changes in eligibility for the Aging Veterans' Programme here is some information from Veterans Affairs.

Effective April 1, 1981, A.V.P. eligibility began with war disability pensioners whose long term health needs are related to their pensioned condition. Eligibility will be extended in four phases:

October 1, 1984 - war disability pensioners 65 years of age and older who also receive War Veterans' Allowance; and to veterans W.V.A. recipients 75 years of age and older.

January 1, 1986, all remaining veteran W.V.A. recipients 65-74 years of age.

January 1, 1987, war disability pensioners 65 years of age and older where payments under Old Age Security (O.A.S.) legislation prevent them from receiving W.V.A.

January 1, 1988, veterans 65 years of age and older with theatre of war service where payments under O.A.S. prevent them from receiving W.V.A.

According to the list provided by OFAH, the winning entries were selected at a draw held May 30 in Peterborough. Ron may not have won the Jeep convertible, first prize in the lottery, but he will be receiving two year's worth of the association's monthly publication, Angler and Hunter.

Weevil poses threat to alfalfa

Alfalfa weevil could be a serious problem in hay fields in many parts of Ontario this year. The Ministry of Agriculture and Food issued a weevil alert across the province last week.

The hot weather last week will stimulate a rapid hatching of weevil eggs, producing large numbers of weevil in a short period of time. Extensive feeding of larvae is already reported in fields in Western Ontario and weevil can be easily found in most alfalfa fields in East Central Ontario now. The natural parasites which effectively reduced alfalfa weevil populations several years ago are at the low level in their cycle, resulting in high weevil populations to cause damage this year.

The most effective control of alfalfa weevil this year will be the early cutting of infested hay fields. Farmers are urged to check their alfalfa fields every two or three days and cut those fields with a high incidence of weevil before the weevil have an opportunity to seriously strip the leaves off the plants. Many fields probably should be cut before the first flower, to prevent damage at the economic level.

Alfalfa flowers are expensive

By the time the first flowers appear, alfalfa hay is starting to lose its' value as a hay crop. The maximum yield of nutrients per acre is reached when the plants reach the late bud stage of maturity.

Forage testing done throughout the last twenty-five years has shown that from late bud stage to maturity, alfalfa loses digestible energy and protein at 1/4 to 1/2 per cent for each day it is left uncut.

Alfalfa hay yielding 3 tonnes per acre could lose 210 kgs. of protein and 300 kg. of total digestible nutrients (TDN) per acre if left to maturity. To replace this amount of energy and protein would require nearly 1/2 tonne of soybean oil meal.

For every tonne of hay fed, the livestock or milk producer would have to supplement 160 kg. of soybean oil meal at a cost of more than $47.00. If he feeds 100 tonnes of hay per year, he would have to buy about $5,000.00 worth of extra soybean oil meal in order to provide the same nutrients.

Keep this in mind when your hay or pasture starts to bloom. It could be costing you $10.00 per day for every acre that's left uncut.

Changes in 1984 wood design code

This new standard which was released in May 1985, results in changes in the engineering design of wood structures. Two fundamental major parts of the new standard are:

1) new allowable stresses for wood species, and, 2) the introduction of the option for Limit States Design Method.

The new allowable stresses significantly change the allowable loads for structurally designed building components. Spruce lumber (S-P-F) has its' allowable stresses increased 15 to 30% depending on size. No. 1 and 2 spruce are now considered equal in strength. Douglas Fir has its' allowable stresses decreased to values actually lower than spruce.

What does this mean to the farm building industry?

1. Spruce trusses, rafters, beams and studs can now carry higher loads.
2. No. 1 and No. 2 spruce are now equal in bending, tension and shear.
3. Douglas Fir will now carry less load.
4. Spruce will carry more load than Douglas Fir.

In the future you can expect to see spruce trusses being produced that are lighter than existing plans. All old plans are outdated. Rafter and beam sizes will also be lighter than specified in the past. Although not used much in Ontario, there is now no strength advantage to using Douglas Fir for plates and beams.

It will take some time for these new changes to show up in farm construction. The first place you will notice it is in pre-manufactured trusses. During this change-over period, using the old standards for spruce will not create any problems since use of the old standards will give an over-design under the new Code.

With these new changes there will be some distinct practial and economic benefits for applying the new 1984 Wood Design Code to farm building industry.

Staanworth Court news

Hi Folks; do hope you are enjoying this lovely weather. The residents of Staanworth Court surely are as they display their love of flowers on the patio and hummingbird feeders. Those wee creatures bring a lot of love with them.

We are so glad to welcome back our folks from the sunny south, namely, Carrie and Mark Vasey, and Jane Taylor.

A few of our folks have been visiting their families and relatives. Henry and Vera Howe recently visited their son Joe, and wife Fern and family in Brooklin.

Marie Gates spent a few days with her parents in Toronto. Mary Casey's son Doug picked her up for a visit with him and his family. Brenda and Ken Laver called on Mary and Albert Stata; and we hope to see them again soon with their lovely music.

Ivy Angliss has been visiting with her husband Bill who has been a patient in Civic hospital in Peterborough for some months now. Edna Smith is at present calling on her sisters in England. Have a safe return, Edna.

We do welcome our new residents, namely, Eleanor and Frank Ferris, Mabel and Ken Trodd, Edna Smith and Jean and Harry Cowan. Hope they enjoy being with us.

It is good to see Florence Lindsay enjoying much better health; to see Mr. Inch able to get out for his regular walks with his walker; and to report that Frank Poole is back home again. Frank has been in very poor health.

We understand that Kathy Thorn is on an extended trip to Las Vegas.

Holly Cooper had a very enjoyable and interesting trip to Lennoxville, Que., in conjunction with the Calorie Counters Group of Minden.

Shirley Vank enjoyed the wedding of her sister in Haliburton last week.

Vivien Anderson tells me that she and her husband Ernie are soon to go North to visit relatives in Whitehorse, Yukon. Have a wonderful holiday, folks.

Those of our residents who are spending their summer at their cottages are Lil and George Davidson, and Eleanor and Frank Ferris. Lil comes back occasionally to call us to a meeting. you see, Lil is our President.

Our sincere sympathy to the families of Mae Wright and Mrs. Gillbank, mother of Mrs. Harry Cowan.

Recently we all enjoyed a delicious salad supper in our lounge. This must carry us over until fall. It is going to be tough for some of us, don't you agree?

So glad to see Henry and Vera Howe's daughter from Washington State, U.S.A., visiting them. We welcome you again Val. Also another daughter, Mary, from Peterborough dropped in to visit with them all.

We are sorry to see Mary and Alex Stevenson leave us to go back to their lovely home in Maple Lake. Come to see us often folks.

By the way, there are some birthdays to celebrate this month of June. They are Emily Poole, Melissa Hampson, and Harry Cowan. Many happy returns of the day to you all.

In closing this bit of news, we would like to take this opportunity to thank New Horizons for their grant and for the helpful attention given by our custodians, Corinne and Hector Arsenault. With this help and the co-operation of our residents, we hope, later this fall, to have on display, and for sale some items of crafts made possible through this grant.

May we see you all at our bake sale and bazaar on June 21, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., on the lot between the Bank of Commerce and Cox's store. Our quilt will be on display and tickets will be on sale.

See you then and there!

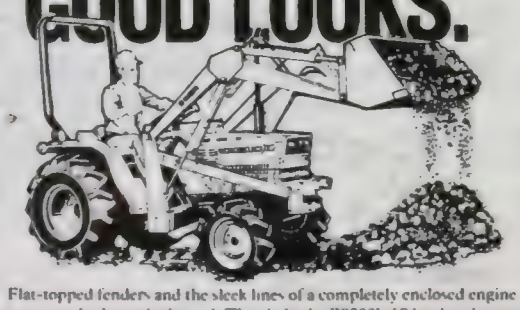
QUIET GOOD LOOKS.



Flat-topped fenders and the sleek lines of a completely enclosed engine compartment don't just look good. They help the B8200's 19 hp diesel engine run quietly.

Operator comfort is further increased by the large floorboards that offer a real platform, more like a big tractor.

The B8200 has other special features too. Two-speed rear PTO, nine forward and three reverse speeds, Category I 3-point hitch, large control levers and a choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive.

Once more I will try to fill in for Edna. Monday evening Linda showed us two more movies (A New Look At Sleep) and (Bloorview - A Very Special Place).

Mrs. Todd had two friends for lunch, Mabel and Elva Deacon. Mrs. Barnum returned Monday from visiting in Haliburton and Kingston.

Edna Cowan took in the 54th wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Dugan.

Tuesday Rev. John Smith from the Haliburton Baptist Church took our services.

We have two more new residents, Mrs. Kathleen Nesbitt and Mrs. Margaret Robinson, who for many years with her husband operated the K & W Restaurant on the main street in Minden. We welcome them to Hyland Crest.

The ladies lawn bowling team came on Thursday with a Tea Party Luncheon. It was followed by a sing song which was very nice and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Margaret Sisson has been in Peterborough Hospital having hip surgery. We hear Mrs. Wilson is having a heart operation in Hamilton. We hope she will have a speedy recovery.

On Friday Doris took a full bus load for a short trip and picnic lunch. They had lunch at the Park by the lake in Haliburton, and then proceeded by way of Fort Irwin, Eagle Lake, West Guilford, Carnarvon and to Kawartha Dairy where they were treated to free ice cream, which was very much enjoyed.

There will be another trip soon, but the bus is only free to us when it is available. I wouldn't be surprised if they landed back at the Dairy.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hewitt visited with her mother Lily Miller on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt came with their two grandchildren to see their great-grandmother Pearl Lyle.

Charlie Brohm had a nice surprise when some of his family came and gave him a very nice rocking chair (a present for Father's Day). There were several folks from here that attended the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ackerblade. They reported a large crowd and a good time was had by those present.

Mark Schell and his three brothers are spending the weekend at their old homestead on Kennisis Lake.

Edna had her brother David Congdon to visit her on Sunday and Milly Wood had Dorothy and Joyce for lunch on Saturday.

There is a rumour that our spelling bee that was postponed is going to take place on June 11th.

I am sorry to report that Annie Cox is not very well these days and we hope she will soon be feeling better.

Alfred Carpenter and family came to call on Alfred Richardson Sunday afternoon.

The service Sunday night was taken by Reverend Knapp of Haliburton Baptist Church.

Au Revoir till next week.

A baby means many changes! We have lots of booklets for "new and used" Moms at the Haliburton County Information Centre at the Drag River Building in Haliburton.

A Guide for Parents of Young Children is a comprehensive little folder discussing topics like night wakings, preparing other children for the new baby, discipline and toilet training. It also deals with the value of taking a break from parenting. To go along with this subject, the Ministry of Community and Social Services has produced Can You Babysit Tonight? This little book would be helpful to train a babysitter.

We also have pamphlets on the Family Allowance you will receive. And finally, there is a booklet on finding and choosing a good day-care situation for your child should you plan to return to work.

Be an informed mom. There is no more important job than parenting and these and other brochures can be helpful for on-the-job training. For more information call 457-2733.

Hi Kids!!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off in the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

What I Want

I don't want a pie and I don't want a watch
I don't want cigars or none of your scotch
I don't want a thing that your money can buy
I don't want a shirt or a four-in-hand tie.

If you really wanted to make the old heart of mine glad
I just want to know that you love your old dad
Most women folk say and believe it I can
It's so terribly hard to buy things for a man.

And from all that I've heard, I'm sure it must be Well, I don't want you spending your money on me
The joy that I crave in a store can't be had
I just want to know you're fond of your dad.

Get on with your shopping, give others the stuff
For me just a hug and a kiss is enough
Just come on in on Father's Day with love in your eye
And tell me you think I'm a pretty swell guy.

With that as a gift I could never be sad
I just want to know that you love your old dad.

Just A Dad.....

Only a DAD, neither rich nor proud
Merely one of the surging crowd
Toiling, striving from day to day
Facing whatever may come his way
Only a dad but he gives his all
To smooth the way for his children small
Doing with courage stern, and grim
The deeds tht his father did for him;
This is the line that for him I pen;
ONLY A DAD BUT THE BEST OF MEN.

The Artist

Artists possess gifts
Bestowed by God,
And an insatiable need to achieve their goal
Which is immortality, with their gift -
And are constantly driven
To reach perfection in all they undertake -
They are indeed a rare breed;
Be it the actor who gives his all
Upon the glittering stage, the enticing screen -
Be it musicians with their instruments,
The glorious voices that resound throughout the world,
The writer with his pen, the painter with his brush
All classic forms of endeavor
Know this truth -
Unfortunately
Artists in every sense of the word are fools,
Curiosities, prisoners of their innermost feelings,
Always at the mercy of others -
Foils for the sham personalities and emotions
Of the common man.
Torment and frustration in the cause of creativity
Are rare privileges to be endured and even savored.
What matter the cost for dubious achievement!
And so, though touched by the hand of God -
They are forever damned!

Yvonne

IN MEMORIAM

VOICEY: In loving memory of my dear husband Joseph (Joe) who passed away June 10, 1982.
Four sad and lonely years have passed away
Since you were called away
You bid no one farewell
I miss you more each day
Life is not the same for me
Since you were called away
It broke my heart to lose you
For part of me went with you
But memories of you I treasure
My love for you will never die
Our children, relatives and friends
Remember and care for me
In so many loving ways
They remember to place flowers
On your resting place
In fond memory of the one they loved.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife Alice.

VOICEY: In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather Joseph who passed away June 10, 1982.

We hold our tears
When we speak your name
But the ache in our hearts
Remains the same.
No one knows the sorrow we share
When our family meets
And you are not there.

Lovingly remembered by all your family.
